

The following are comments from teachers on the sessions.

Do you think it was a success?

Yes I do, I would imagine you would have useful data on speeds etc to test the NBN. Like all pilot projects it is about the process and the end point rather than it being perfect all the way through

Would you do anything differently if you were asked again?

Well hindsight's a great thing isn't it? What we know now however is relevant to this situation. I would do at least 3-4 trials without the students as to not waste their time and teaching hours. I would then trial it with them at least once

What were the main issues?

Lack of technical support for us

In fact anything you would like to write about.....

I am happy we participated in the trial, adobe and Moodle are technologies worth using and it has given us some skills and knowledge to use in the future. Our Faculty Manager is very happy and grateful we have been involved.
